Bio (approximately 250 words):

Prof. Dean Ignacio Cordova, Jr., is a renowned academician who serves as the college dean at Our Lady of Fatima University's acclaimed College of Hospitality and Institutional Management and College of Business and Accountancy. Dr. Cordova is highly regarded for his contributions to the development of business and hospitality education in the Philippines. With a decades-long career, Dr. Cordova is highly respected for his contribution to developing business and hospitality education in the Philippines. As a member of the Philippine Commission on Higher Education Technical Committee for Hospitality and Tourism Education, Dr. Cordova has worked tirelessly with other members towards establishing quality policies, guidelines, and standards for higher hospitality and tourism education. Notably, he is an accreditor for the Philippine Association of Colleges and Universities Commission on Accreditation, affirming his expertise and authority in the accreditation process. Dr. Cordova's leadership at the Asia Cooperation Dialogue-University Network (ACD-UN) as a key personality has influenced the direction of the network. His visionary statement, "Driven by Vision, Fueled by Innovation," is a testament to his leadership style, which has resulted in numerous accomplishments. His expertise in quality assurance is evident from the international accreditations his programs have received from prestigious organizations like the International Accreditation Council for Business Education in the USA and the Institute of Hospitality in the UK. Under his guidance, his business program has become a Center of Excellence (COE) of the Commission on Higher Education (CHED) and recently received the First Internationalization Award in Philippine Higher Education (CHED).

Reason seeking position (optional):

Several factors account for Dr. Cordova's desire to serve as a regional officer of the International Accreditation Council for Business Education (IACBE). Dr. Cordova believes he can play a key role in bolstering the commitment to high standards in business education throughout the region if he is given the opportunity to serve in this position. By collaborating closely with other institutions of higher education and business community partners, Dr. Cordova can promote best practices, enhance the quality of education, and encourage other institutions to join in the IACBE certification process. As a regional officer, Dr. Cordova will have the chance to exchange best practices with other professionals in the field of business education. By growing his professional network and maintaining connections with colleagues at other institutions, Dr. Cordova can ensure that his institution remains competitive by remaining abreast of current trends and advancements in the field.
